Maggie's bio

After graduating from Boston College with a degree in Communications, Maggie moved to NYC and began her professional career as a model, specializing in print and runway. After posing and walking for designers, she became the Beauty and Fashion Director for the "Vogue" of salon magazines, traveling globally to attend press events, producing magazine covers, covering New York, Paris and London Fashion Weeks and judging hair and beauty competitions internationally. During her career, Maggie interviewed hundreds of the world's top hairdressers and beauty pros to discover and share their secrets with readers of Modern Salon Magazine, Modern Salon TV, and several social media platforms. Now semi-retired, Maggie serves as the editor-at-large for Estetica, while also producing a few photoshoots a year. She is the author of "Great Looks" (Doubleday) and the creator of Artist Session, a photoshoot guidance seminar for top beauty professionals.

Now a Village resident, Maggie is a Silver Rockette, performs with Kiddo Productions, plays pickleball, and is writing several books for children which should be published this year. You can learn more about Maggie on her website: maggiemulhern.com.
